Manufacturers and Dealers in Superphosphates, Bone Meal. Etc.

POR SOME TIME A GREAT WANT HAS been felt by the orange grower of Southern California for a fertilizer adapted to this fruit. We have been successful in finding just the food, and now offer to the orange grower our "Orange Tree Fertilizer." It is an article thoroughly adapted to this tree, consisting of bone, potash, phosphoric acid, ammonia and other ingredients, and is a complete manure for growing trees, from time of setting out to full maturity. Gophers will not work where this fertilizer is used, on account of their distaste for the phosphoric acid, which is very helpful to the tree—either orange or lemon. In the growing of other citrus or deciduous fruits in California the use of superposephates, according to Prof. Hilgard, will be found much better adapted to the purpose than either barnyard or stable manure, in that they contain the necessary constituents of which the soil has been deprived by its long continuance in the cultivation of such crops. In setting out trees, one pound per tree should be used, thoroughly mixed with the soil before irrigating. The quantity used on old trees according to the age of the tree—tree 5 years old, 5 pounds: 10 years old 10 pounds. If the trees are 20 feet apart or more, and the soil be very poor, a greater quantity may be used to good advantage. The fertilizer may be applied at any time before a rain or irrigating. Price, $36 per ton.
